NEVADA'S BRIGHT OUTLOOK.

The Austin Reveille truly remarks: "The dark clouds on Nevada's horizon have cleared away and our prospects look cheerful. Silver is gradually climbing up the scale, striving to reach the top notch, and our anxious people are looking on, hoping that its ascent will continue. The financiers have lost their grip upon the precious metal and it has escaped from their grasp, and we trust that it will continue to stand on its own basis, and have its own standard.

The Comstock is having a boom and the old timers shake their heads in doubt and cojure their ill luck in not buying stock when it was low. Its influence is felt all over the State and, should these ore deposits prove to be genuine and not the fancy of the stock-broker Virginia City will resume its old-time prosperity. We have every reason to think that there are to-day ledges in this State undiscovered, which will prove a bonanza to the lucky prospector who finds them.

Our fine ranges have been proved by trial to be able to support large bands of cattle and horses and men who have realized this fact are rich, prosperous and independent, their cattle yielding a handsome profit each year. As this industry increases it will proportionally make many districts of the State self-sustaining and it will bring immigration from other parts of this country who will purchase land and become good citizens of Nevada.

What we need sorely is a committee whose duties shall consist in sending circulars East and West, giving a graphic account of the resources of the State and the adaptability of our hills for raising stock. California owes her prosperity in good part, to this judicious advertising and we recognize the boom around Los Angeles and the surrounding country as a direct result, in making known their available chances for outside capital to invest.

Nevada will receive the attention which she desires from the East when she is known as her inhabitants truly know her. The next Legislature have it in their hands to help the State by appointing a committee to attend to this matter. It is a subject which requires much thought and it deserves the consideration of our Assemblymen.

IS MR. STEWART ELIGIBLE?

The Silver State, of the 20th, raises this question:

The eligibility of Mr. Stewart to the United States Senatorship is now being discussed by the legal fraternity. The Constitutional amendment just adopted requires one year's actual, not constructive, residence in the State, as one of the qualifications of an elector. This amendment is now a part of our State Constitution, becoming such as soon as a majority of the votes cast at the election ratified it. The Constitution also provides that "no person shall be eligible to any office who is not a qualified elector under this Constitution," and the Constitution of the United States provides that "no person shall be a United States Senator who shall not have attained to the age of thirty years, and been nine years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not when elected be an inhabitant of that State for which he shall have been chosen.' The Courts have defined the word "inhabitant," as used in the Federal Constitution, as a bona fide member of the State, subject to all the regulations of law, and entitled to all privileges and advantages under the law.

Under the Constitution of Nevada, as amended by vote of the people at the election on the 2d instant, a person can not be a qualified elector unless he has been an actual resident of the State for one year, and he can not be "entitled to all privileges and advantages under the law" unless he is a qualified elector. A Senator must, therefore, when elected, be an "inhabitant"—that is, a qualified elector—of the State, entitled to all the privileges and advantages and subject to all the regulations that are by law conferred upon the citizens of the State.

Now the question, is W. M. Stewart an inhabitant—that is, a qualified elector—of Nevada? presents itself. The Constitution, as amended requires one year's actual residence in the State as one of the qualifications of an elector. Does Mr. Stewart possess that qualification? That depends upon the time he returned from California with his family to reside in Nevada, which, according to the Carson papers, was about eight months ago. He is, therefore, not a "bona fide member of the State, subject to all the regulations of the law, and entitled to all privileges and advantages under the law."

It is a significant fact that at the very time that an imported candidate, who who has not been an actual resident of the State for more than eight months, is being forced upon the people of Nevada for United States Senator by corporation coin, the electors at the ballot-box should almost unanimously declare that one years' residence in the State is necessary to become a voter.

To-day, under the amended Constitution, a person is not eligible for the office of constable unless he has been an actual resident of the State for one year, yet a determined effort is being made by the moneyed powers, seconded by corporation newspapers, to force upon the people of Nevada for United States Senator a man who has not the constitutional qualifications for Constable, and this, too, in the face of a "home rule" resolution adopted less than two months ago in a State Convention, and indorsed by every Republican candidate for the Legislature.

The Duty of Democratic Legislators.

The Virginia Chronicle says:

The Silver State agrees with the Chronicle and takes issue with the Eureka Sentinel in regard to the attitude the Democratic members of the next Legislature should assume in casting their votes for United State's Senator. Mr. Cassidy's suggestion that the Democrats ignore the Stewart and anti-Stewart factions among the Republican members elect and vote for a man of their own party, is not a popular one. Nothing would be accomplished by pursuing such a course. There is no earthly chance for a Democrat to win, and therefore it is the duty of the party to see, if possible, that the State shall be represented by a clean and wholesome Republican—a bona fide resident; a man who has some interest in it and pays taxes for its support—not by a carpet-bag agent of the Central Pacific Railroad and Alaska Fur Companies sent from California six months before election for the purpose of grabbing the greatest prize in the gift of the people to further the interests of those monopolies

Mr. Cassidy assumes that should the Republicans commit the irreparable blunder of sending Stewart to the Senate, the Democrats would make so much political capital out of their action that they would have no difficulty ever after in carrying the State.

The foolishness of locking the stable door after the horse has been stolen is often demonstrated. The world may come to an end in the next six years; if not, it is more than probable that independent citizenship in Nevada will, should we place our necks further in the C. P. noose by sending their carpet bag servant to the United States Senate.

Here is what the Silver State has to say in regard to Mr. Cassidy's advice:

Though this opinion is given by Mr. Cassidy, an able leader and astute politician, it does not seem to have been well considered. What capital could the Democratic party make for future campaigns by the election of Mr. Stewart, or any other imported candidate, to the Senate? Has not the President of the United States, who was elected by Democratic votes, deprived the Democrats of this State of the opportunity to arraign the Republicans for electing an imported candidate to the Senate, by appointing an Iowa carpet bagger to one of the best Federal offices in the State? In the event of the election of Mr. Stewart to the Senate, would not the Democratic charge of importing a candidate for Senator be answered by the Republicans with the counter charge of a Democratic carpet bag Surveyor General? Again, would it not be inconsistent on the part of the Democratic members of the Legislature to exact pledges from a Republican who should oppose Mr. Stewart on the ground of non-residence, to support an Administration which appoints to one of the highest Federal offices in Nevada a man who can not claim even a constructive residence in the State?

If Nevada Democrats can not be successful, they can at least be consistent. They, as well as the Republicans, have declared for home rule, and if sixteen or more Republicans in the Legislature regard their pledges to the extent of voting for a home candidate for Senator, the Democrats can not do less than support that candidate to defeat an imported one. The Legislature is Republican and that party is entitled to the Senatorship. All the members of that party recently elected are pledged to home rule but if only a minority of them abide by their pledges, the Democrats, who are also in favor of home rule, should encourage right and rebuke wrong by voting with them for a Senator. In that way they will maintain their self respect, merit the respect of decent people of all parties, and assist in giving a death blow to the business of importing candidates.

The firm of Stinson and Marsh, says the Dayton News Reporter, the famous breeders of fine stock, has been dissolved. The new firm will be W. J. Marsh & Son.

RENO REDUCTION WORKS.

A Complete Description of the Plant.

The Virginia Footlight says:

The Reno reduction works are situated a mile east of Reno and 100 yards south of the C. P. track, with two side-tracks running to the works from the east and from the west.

The plant consists of a complete sampling works, a rock breaker, a 10-stamp dry crushing battery with room arranged for 10 more stamps, a drying furnace, a 40-ton Howell improved white roasting and chlorodizing furnace, five pans with settlers, retorts and other appliances, and a 30-ton water jacket smelter with a Baker-blower and other furnace appurtenances, all driven by a 52-inch improved Laffel turbine wheel.

The building is upon the level of the railroad track and slopes down the river bank for the advantageous automatical handling of ores.

The sampling room is divided in many compartments for the storage of ores and is 35x100 feet. The dryer, roaster and battery are below this, in a room 40x100. The next step below are the pans and settlers, in the east end of which room is the water-jacket furnace. This room is 40-100. The Laffel wheel is 50 feet to the rear of the pan room, and the power is taken from the wheel shaft to a counter shaft and thence to the line shaft by means of grooved pulleys and wire rope.

The mill will be lighted by electricity; in fact the Laffel wheel will supply the electricity for the new Reno electric works.

The dam in the Truckee to raise the water into the ditch and flume is 900 feet from the mill, and built substantially of granite and timber. The flume is 12 feet wide and 3 feet deep, and will furnish water power for another similar turbine wheel, which the company calculates to put in when the business warrants it. There is plenty of room in the building to put in additional stamps, pans, rock-breakers and water-jackets.

The ores are dumped from the cars into the bins. In this room for sampling there is a small rock-breaker, grinding and sizing machines. The ore is taken from the bins to the rock-breaker and there crushed. It drops into a double chute. If it can be amalgamated by the free milling process it comes out of one opening of the chute into an elevator which conveys it direct to the hopper of the battery where it is crushed and reduced by the regular milling process. If it requires roasting it falls in the other chute and passes through a dryer and thence to the feeders at the battery where it is crushed into an impalpable powder, and then conveyed in like manner to the cooling floor where it is cooled with water, and then passed in pans and settlers as in the free milling process.

Ores containing a certain percentage of lead which cannot be removed by roasting will be worked by the water-jacket. This will be supplied with a rock-breaker and the ore will first pass through that and then, if necessary, it will be put through the roasting furnace and desulphurized. It is made into proper charges then and mixed with their proper fluxes and fed into the furnace and smelted. The product of the furnace is lead containing silver and gold. This material will be shipped to either Salt Lake, Denver or San Francisco to be refined.

The blower that will supply the blast for the furnace is a 4½-foot Baker, and the furnace can use either coke or charcoal, or both, though their present contract is for charcoal.

The Howell furnace increases the capacity of the 10-stamp mill to a 20-stamp mill.

John Howell, under whose supervision all the work has been conducted, built the first dry crushing mill in Austin in 1860, and has since devoted his time and energies to the character of work in which he is now employed, and the vast and varied interests of miners, prospectors and mine-owners, and all, in fact, having the welfare of Nevada at heart, could not be reposed in safer or more conscientious hands. His large experience and tried ability preclude the possibility of flattering the man, and it is indeed fortunate for all concerned that the important test of reduction works is under his supervision.

The company received five car-loads of ore yesterday, coming from as far east as Battle Mountain and south from Keeler, and every place between those points, till the bins are now taxed to their fullest capacity.

Work is progressing rapidly, and it is expected to commence upon the reduction of ores by the 1st of December.

The Commissioner of the General Land Office has sent to the officers of the Senate and House of Representatives copies of the map of the United United States recently prepared under the direction of the General Land office. Each Senator will receive for distribution about thirty copies, and each Representative about ten copies.

The prominent men of the nation are passing away rapidly, and the necrological table of 1886 will astonish the thoughtful.
